REBUFF IS GIVEN AMBASSADOR WILSON AND UNITED STATES

MEXICO'S PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT OFFICIALLY NOTIFIES AMBASSADOR THAT HE IS IN AN AWKWARD POSITION.

Mexico City, May 9.—President Victoriano Huerta, during his conference yesterday with Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador, stated very clearly the position of Mexico in relation to the United States. The following official version of the conference was given to the Associated Press today.

"Provisional President Huerta respectfully stated to Ambassador Wilson, that diplomat having referred to official matters, that the government of Mexico was disposed to arrange the affairs pending between it and the Government of the United States. It was pointed out however, that for the time being the American Ambassador should understand the necessity which the Government of Mexico has been abstaining from treating any official matter, with the exception of urgent affairs or ordinary procedure for the simple reason that while the government of the United States did not recognize the government of Mexico, all agreements would be ineffective in view of the fact that the government of Mexico has no personality before the government of the United States.

This was the substance of the conference between his excellency Ambassador Wilson and the President of Mexico General Victoriano Huerta.

"In addition, however, the government of Mexico, whether recognized or not by the United States has adopted and will always adopt measures for the security of all the inhabitants of the country, whether its own nationals or foreigners, and this has been demonstrated by the attention given to the just petitions of those who have been in a manner injured by past revolutions.

The United States and all the peoples of Europe have irrefutable proofs that the government of Mexico is specially pledged to give guarantees to everybody without distinction of nationality."

ONE YEAR AND A $500 FINE FOR EACH

New York, May 9.—Before Judge Hand, John J. Martha, Louis Thompson and James J. Hoey, three former police officers, sentenced to serve one year and to pay a fine of $500 each, for conspiracy in connection with the police raids out of the state, were today sentenced to one year each and to pay a fine of $500 each.

This was the maximum punishment under the law. Sentence was imposed by Justice Seabury in the criminal branch of the supreme court.

It was understood that the four police officers asked to take punishment for obstructing justice without making any appeal in consideration of which District Attorney Whitman agreed to drop the remaining indictments against them charging extortion and bribery.

GOVERNOR O'NEAL WILL GO ON STAND IN CONVICT PROBE

Montgomery, Ala., May 9.—The convict department investigation will probably be resumed next week. It was learned today that the committee will call Governor O'Neal to testify in the matter of the convict contract. It is understood that he will be asked to tell the committee what he knows about the contract and the circumstances under which it was made. The governor is expected to be the last witness before the committee.

Now that the session of the legislature is about to end, it is believed that the committee will be called upon to do the work for which it was created. How come the Mississippi secretary to stop at $40,000?

And all of the disgruntled politicians out in Florida, California and Illinois, that tried to give more politicians a job, they could put two more in to the senate and have an opening for governor. But that state is big enough to be cut in two and then have two big states.

Pennsylvania is promoting to teach the Bible to its school children. A law has been passed requiring the teachers to read ten verses each day to the students in the school room. Well, in time, there is no telling. A race may grow up in Pennsylvania that will be heard from in other ways than being connected with the capitolbuilding graft and Old Ben Franklin.

A Chicago youth, the son of a wealthy man, ran his automobile over a person the other day, and was hauled into court and fined $200 and given a prison sentence. The father refused to pay the fine or help the boy to escape the prison sentence. He thinks the lesson will be worth something to his son, as he showed no disposition to stop and give assistance to the man he ran down.

CHOIR TROUBLE.

You wouldn't think a church choir would have so much trouble but many of them do. The other day, in Baltimore, one church choir had to have the police in to help some loud-mouthed male voices in the audience from drowning out the choir. Then in another church, the choir struck, and when the deacons went on the job, the regulars came back in the congregation and glared but they didn't throw bricks.

Mr. Percy Andreae, sounds like a hero in Laura Jean's novels, but he isn't. He is just a big man in the National Liquor Dealers Association of America, and got his name in the dispatches the other day because he said that prohibition was worse than the Ohio flood. He said that prohibition would destroy a billion dollars worth of property, and throw half a million of people out of employment. Percy shouldn't talk reckless with figures like he will give the country a bad jolt.

BUT WHY NOW

Governor Brewer of Maine has also started a fight. He is to study to advantage the Maine method of probing into state affairs.

—Montgomery Advertiser.

Yes, but Governor Brewer is not like Governor O'Neal will not pay any money for the fight. The probe can be a perfect success and a few heads will come up for chopping as is always the case in such probings but that doesn't restore a cent of the stolen money.

It seems there is an alley in Washington called Maine. A Congressman from Maine introduced a bill in the house the other day, with the object in view of doing away with the alley. It is but three blocks long, and the congressman thinks it ought to be called Maine, that it should be done away with. He doesn't seem to think a half a loaf is better than no loaf at all and introduced the bill probably to teach the young Americans the name of Guernsey, the Representative from Maine, who introduces the bill.

WHY YOU NEED A SILO

The silo is the only way to save frosted corn and put the fodder value into it and rush it into the silo at once.

Silage makes more and better milk and better calves than any other method of feeding.

Stock grow in winter as well as in summer. It will cured for.

It is easy to fill the silo and cheaply.

It is a durable and cheap structure. A concrete silo is fire proof and rat proof.

Stock fed silage are healthy. One farmer writes: We did not have one sick animal where we used to have ten or more.

It makes the most and cheapest manure. The cobs and stalks are all eaten and digested. Full value is recovered from the whole plant. Use as a feed and a fertilizer.

Corn cobs are very rich in potash and when dried hard are very hard to rot, thus keeping their entire value as a feed and fertilizer for several years. The fertilizer value robbed the soil to that extent.

The man who feeds fodder without a silo for a year loses the cost of a silo and still has none.

Thousands of farmers and stockmen add their testimony and proclaim positively that the silo pays for itself in one year, that it doubles or even quadruples the value of the feed crop. An act of good husbandry will keep a cow or steer on pasture.—A. M. Wolden, in The Progressive Farmer.

WHY THE TIRE BELL RINGS IN HOMEBURG

—By George Fitch

In the May American Magazine George Fitch the famous Illinois funny man writes an article entitled "The Friendly Fire Fiend." It is the first of series of Homeburg sketches having, to do with the various phases of living in a small town. Following, is an extract:

You city people don't realize what a fire sign the fire bell is in a small town. It means a whole lot to us. It keeps us from settling down. It makes the dull season shorter. It makes us have to be ready for anything. Any old alarm will do. We fire bell sounds just as terrible a warning, hook-and-ladder as it would to a flaming powder mill. It is advertising enough to have the fire bell rung. Like a winter shed in the dull season after Christmas. Long after Christmas. You have been up to go to church after supper. DAINTIES FOR THE LUNCHEON

Hostess Who Wishes to Get Something Really Appetizing Before Her Guests Should Try These

A new sandwich served this afternoon has two slices of hot crisp toast dipped on one side in melted butter and filled with iced raw oysters sprinkled with lemon

A variation of this filling is to stew the oysters until they curl slightly remove the eye chop rather fine with a silver knife and mix with mayonnaise

Another good toast sandwich has the toast prepared in the same way and filled with finely scrambled egg sprinkled with finely chopped crisp bacon [illegible] sandwiches must be served immediately they are not good

Instead of serving lemon with tea have on the tray a jar of grapefruit marmalade In a silver holder or crystal jam jar If you have an eye and pocketbook for effect Put a spoonful of the marmalade into the tea instead of the usual slice of lemon Queer but good

Orange marmalade is used in the same way so is preserved ginger and brandied fruit The latter must be chopped into quite small pieces if the fruit is whole

The Russians use preserves of all kinds in the tea but the marmalades and conserves that have a slightly acid or piquant tang are less cloying

A sweet toast is made by cutting small squares of chlorine of toast This is dipped into a mixture made from a pint of hot milk into which has been stirred the grated rind of a lemon and four tablespoonfuls of sugar Flavor with a dash of brandy Dip the soaked toast in beaten egg and fry quickly in hot butter or bake on a well greased griddle Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve immediately

STARCH SAID TO SPOIL LINEN

Best to Iron It Damp Declares an Authority—Good Way to Keep the Centerpieces Smooth

Do not starch any linen If you wish to have it look at its best iron it damp says Harpers Bazar Starch ruins linen Hang all sheets table cloths and towels so that the weight when wet will come on the length wise threads which are the stronger Otherwise the linen will show an inclination to split along the folds Linen yellowed by long lying may be whitened by adding kerosene to the water when boiling About a tablespoon to a gallon of water is the correct proportion After tablecloths are folded lengthwise they may be kept smooth by rolling on pasteboard mailing tubes A ribbon may be run through the tube and tied first across the cloth and then around the tube in two places to keep the ends in place This is a good way to keep linen centerpieces smooth If however the rolling is done when the linen is still damp, the centerpieces will continue to roll as they lie on the table

Peanut Soup

Shell a pint of toasted peanuts and remove the fine paper like covering of the kernels Grind into a fine powder by rolling them Use the powdered nuts in a cream made soup from a pint of milk and a pint of water a scant tablespoonful of flour and a full one of butter rubbed together one tablespoonful of salt and white pepper to taste This soup may be made without the milk using a quart of water and serving with thin slices of lemon in each bowl This soup has a fine flavor and contains considerable nourishment

Carrot Salad

TAKE PLACE OF MUSHROOMS

When Succulent Relish Is Unobtainable Fried Radishes Properly Prepared Are a Good Substitute

Mushrooms are fast becoming a necessity in the household of epicures but there always comes a time when fresh ones are not obtainable and when a spice of a little extra elegance is needed for the larder or to add a flavor to a grilled steak or a succulent chop a good substitute for the champignon is found in fried radishes peeled and browned in plenty of butter When brown and tender arrange around the meat and send into the table and wait for the exclamations of surprise as the similarity of flavor is noted Oftentimes if the guests are not apprised the substitution will pass unnoticed

Compotes of winter fruits properly prepared help over that interval after the departure of the early and other fruits and when the little crop of the pleasant tart of nature's tonic to the system The French housewife makes an intricate study of the preparation of her conserves and marmalades and her attractive dishes of jams made from peaches rhubarb and pineapple flavored orange and apricot prunes and gooseberries are a revelation to the American housekeeper who has perhaps taken less time to devote to the study of her table at this season

Many Americans who prepare and stew their fruit daintily enough fail completely in one of the most important points of serving through which an otherwise alluring dish is often spoiled Compotes should be served either but thoroughly chilled and not as occasionally with ice lukewarm Serve even the matutinal dish of stewed prunes from the breakfast chest with one or two green grape leaves under their glass dish and see how much the flavor of this obeahan dish is improved

Ways of the Working Class

The psychology of the working class is different from that of the other classes The prevailing tone is apathy There is no discontent envy of the well to do but neither is there that restless eagerness to better their position and confidence in their ultimate prosperity which the American spirit is supposed to instil into a man Men in the trades seem to have this spirit but it is noticeably absent from the factory class Even the immigrants seem quickly to lose that flush of hope and ambition with which they arrive in this country The factory entirely consists into a [illegible] to that then [illegible] settling down to a monotonous drudgery without a look forward or backward They are chiefly concerned in holding their jobs and escaping the horrors of unemployment—in making both ends meet Beyond this their little horizon for day dreaming and ambition I like to think is a constant feeling of unrest in dissatisfaction economy or management of resources not in effort to improve themselves on their neighbors and to conform to the ways of those about them This deep seated divergence in standards and interests from the rest of American life may or may not be important for the factory class is thus far politically negligible but it is interesting and will calculated to suggest many unpleasant things to American minds —Randolph S Bourne in the Atlantic

I NEED YOUR ROSES NOW

By Myra Goodwin Plantz

I do not plead a broken heart,
My life has much of bliss
And yet at times the hot tears start,
Because of joys I miss
Oh, do not leave the tender things
Unsaid till over my brow
Death's wing its warning shadow flings!
I need your roses now

If I should take the journey far
Your tears would fall like rain
And out beyond the evening star
Your soul would call in vain
But walking closely by your side
How little you allow
For human failings none can hide
I need your roses now

My life would brighten everywhere
If half the love were shown
In tender sympathizing care
That gleams in costly stone
The honor you too late would give
Give now I care not how —
For you and you alone I live
And need your roses now

NEVER IMAGINE YOURSELF SLIGHTED

In the May Woman's Home Companion a contributor makes the following inquiry in the Home Problems department

I am one of three friends who have been equally fond of both the others I feel I have often found myself rather out of the group Mrs A who used to run in and see me every day who would take walks with me come in with her sewing and spend my whole afternoon and be constantly with Mrs X not long ago I discovered that they had a secret in common which they withheld from me As we live in a small place where we are so dependent on one another and as we have been called the inseparables I am just as unhappy as I can be and do not know what to do

The Editor of the Home Problems department makes the following reply

A triangular friendship is a difficult affair Two people may share an intimacy The third person must sometimes be dropped I think that you are needless in your fears about your friends I may be wrong but never to imagine oneself slighted A few cases of the kind you mention they sometimes come as a pleasant surprise that I planned My advice is to take a fourth neighbor into the group of friends Try the plan and see how it may work

SANTA FE PALACE

Old House of Spanish Governors Now Being Restored

Ruins of Ancient Town in New Mexico Show That Its Prehistoric People Were Familiar With Concrete Construction

[illegible] of the school of American Archeology

The edifice which is now undergoing restoration here is the first old palace of the governors which was erected in 1610 This ancient building was the home of nearly 100 viceroys and governors who ruled over the territory in the days of Spanish domination In the work of restoration efforts are being made to restore the structure to its original dimensions and other features of architectural finish In carrying on this work a discovery was made that throws new light upon the methods of construction particularly with reference to the use of concrete that was used by the people of three centuries ago It was popularly supposed that the old palace of the governors was built of adobe blocks of uniform size The use of these blocks was thought to account for the extraordinary thickness of the walls It was recently found that they are of solid construction

Which is of still greater interest however to modern builders, to our people is the discovery made by Prof Hewett that beneath the ancient palace building, are the ruins of other buildings that were evidently a part of a prehistoric Indian town and that the buildings of the long lost town were constructed of adobe material in practically the same manner that modern concrete buildings are erected In describing these discoveries Prof Hewett said

The dismantling of the interior of the old palace of the governors for the purpose of repairing and restoring it has furnished striking evidence to confirm what has been believed heretofore by archaeologists of the southwest namely that the palace was built upon the ruins of a very ancient Indian town by the Spanish conquerors Large masses of the outlined walls of the ancient Indian buildings have been laid bare and in places these have been covered with glass so that visitors to the museum rooms may see them in place These walls were built of adobe after the same manner in which concrete walls are constructed at the present time that is the mud was packed in masses of wattlework in massive courses four or five feet thick and three to four feet high On drying the hearing was tested and the surrounding courses laid in the same manner

The ancient church at Santa Fe which was restored to a good semblance of its original appearance a few years ago is also of no little interest in the matter of construction It has been found that its walls were of poured concrete lined with adobe bricks According to tradition the corner stone of Santa Fe is the Catholic order which claims of the oldest houses of worship in the United States It founded Rio was laid in 1611

The next oldest church building in this country is the mission of San Xavier Bac near Tucson Ariz in the Papago Indian settlement There is a dispute as to whether the San Xavier mission building was started in 1700 or 1783 Fly some of it is later date
